Dragon fruit

A photograph of two dragon fruits (Hylocyrtus undulatus) against a white background. On the left is a whole, uncut dragon fruit with its characteristic bright pink, scaly skin and green, pointed leaves. To its right is a dragon fruit cut in half lengthwise, revealing the interior. The flesh is a pale, creamy white, densely packed with small, black, oval-shaped seeds. The cut surface of the fruit shows a moist, slightly glistening texture. The lighting is bright and even, highlighting the vibrant colors and textures of the fruit.

Papaya

A halved papaya is shown in the foreground, revealing its bright orange, fleshy interior and a central cavity filled with numerous small, dark, oval-shaped seeds. The outer skin of the halved fruit is a mottled green and yellow. In the background, to the right, is a whole, uncut papaya with a smooth, green skin. The entire scene is set against a plain white background.
